“Dr. Coop helps enhance productivity, performance, and alignment by improving human and workplace paradigms.”

Dr. Coopwood is the Lead Consultant & Co-Founder of Coop Di Leu, the acronym for Coopwood Divergent Leadership & Education Universal. He is a nationally recognized educator and keynote speaker on inclusive language, cultural transformation, and identity development. Ken is well known for his approachability, his ability to break down stereotypes, and his practice of speaking to the person rather than their title. He draws on experiences from D-1 athletics, becoming deafened at age 35, and serving as a four-time executive in higher education to deliver authentic, humorous, educational, and motivating stories and insights.

“In a nation where speculations of money, health, poverty, and policy rank supreme in the conscience of the public mind, the most tragic and destructive display of human judgment is STILL that which conceals the absolute truth of a people.” Dr. Coop’s messages are grounded in the human responsibility to revisit, reveal, and relearn what truth is for all people. He helps discover new ways to apply these truths and creates transformative experiences in the process.

Throughout his career and entrepreneurial pursuits, he has delivered addresses at organizations of various types, including:
